Pay Raises Are Here, But Not All Of Them Immediately

"MR. PAY" CHANGES DUTY, PAGE 8

PAY increases for scores of thousands of military personnel take effect 1 June—one of the brightest days in recent career attractiveness history.

As reported in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL, the Military Pay Act of 1958, if fully implemented, could put as much as an additional $628,000,000 in the pockets and pocketbooks of military families during the next 12 months.

Actually, however, the increase in pay probably will total closer to $600,000,000.

For one thing, there is likely to be some delay in the implementation of proficiency pay for thousands of enlisted men, which could be worth as much as $150 per month.

A much longer delay can be expected for the start of responsibility pay for officers in 0-3, 0-4, 0-5, and 0-6 ranks, which ranges from $50 to $150 per month.

The Budget Bureau is reported to be urging the Pentagon to go slowly in providing extra pay, particularly in officer ranks.

Defense Department officials say that the Services, which strongly endorsed the Cordiner Committee recommendation for such authority, are committed to enlisted proficiency pay. The Services already are drawing up specific plans for its implementation, with ultimately as many as 15% of all enlisted personnel authorized to receive extra pay.

It's a different story in officer ranks.

The Military Pay Act of 1958 authorizes extra pay for certain officers who are filling positions of "extraordinary responsibility and critical necessity."

This extra pay for officers was not ad-

"Power For Peace" Gets New Punch

Hard on the heels of the Armed Forces Day celebration 17 May with its theme of "Power For Peace" and with the approaching close of the fiscal year, the Armed Forces this week gained new fighting strength.

At Groton, Conn., the "flying" atomic submarine Skipjack was launched at the General Dynamics Corporation's Electric Boat Division, where Admiral Arleigh Burke, CNO, told of epic voyages of two other nuclear submarines (Page 11).

Maj. Edward LeFaivre, USMC, whose picture is shown below, took a Douglas Skyway to new time-to-climb speed records. Details are told in a story on Page 26.

The major's record-shattering flights were made known in connection with the annual convention of the Aviation Writers Association in Houston, Tex., at which THE JOURNAL is represented by Editor-Publisher LeRoy Whitman, a for-

Committee Says SecDef Is The "Boss"; Gives Its Answers To President's Objections

The House Armed Services Committee has cleared up any confusion, ambiguity or misconception which may have existed as to who should be the top boss of the military forces. He is the Secretary of Defense.

The question is answered in unequivocal terms in the Committee's formal report on the proposed Pentagon Reorganization which probably will be scheduled for House floor debate next week.

Here is what the report says about the Secretary's authority:

"The Secretary of Defense is the head of the Department of Defense; he has direction, authority and control; he is the 'boss'; all members of the Military Establishment will look upon him as being the

THOUSANDS of new Government quarters for Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps families are planned for the fiscal year beginning 1 July.

Against a world-wide requirement of 678,500 housing units, the Armed Forces have 455,800 available or under contract and are planning to start construction 58,600 more during the next 12 months.

Much of the planned construction has already been programmed, but the total includes 13,457 Capehart, 935 Appropriated-fund and 6,650 Surplus Commodity units the fiscal '59 military construction bill now before Congress.

Congress also has been asked, and is expected, to approve an extension of the Capehart program under which the Services currently are spending more than $650 million to provide housing relief for Service families.

ACADEMY GRADS

The U. S. Military Academy has released the names of "Sons of the Service," in the Class of '58, which are published on Page 3. Also on that page are the names of the Presidential appointees to the Navy and Marine Corps from the Annapolis class. Last week's issue published the names of the U. S. Coast Guard Academy graduates. The full USMA list and the names of the USMA and USNA graduates entering the Air Force appeared in the 10 May issue.

ROA Chief, New Orleans Mayor, Calls For Army "Hurricane Force"

THE JOURNAL's coverage of current activities of major military associations continues with this special report on the Reserve Officers Association. Next Week's issue will feature the Retired Officers Association.

BRIG. GEN. deLesseps S. Morrison, USAR, President of the 63,000-man Reserve Officers Association of the United States, has commended the Army's "initial decision" to maintain all existing Reserve and National Guard Divisions.

General Morrison, Mayor of New Orleans, La., recommends that the Reserves be organized into a "Hurricane Force" with trained and equipped units ready for immediate use when needed.

Brig. Gen. Morrison

The Army's decision, announced by Army Chief of Staff General Maxwell D. Taylor, constituted a partial reversal of plans to cut the Reserves from 10 to 6 divisions. No changes have yet been announced on the program to cut authorized Reserve strength from 300,000 to 270,000.

General Taylor's announcement is "most timely since there have been continuing rumors that the Reserves were to be reduced and downgraded," General Morrison said. "ROA hopes that this means the Reserves will continue as a powerful important component in the forces needed to defend this nation."

Wants Complete Unification

Consistently on record in support of complete unification of the Armed Forces, the all-Service Reserve Officers Association has as its main aim "to support a military policy for the United States that will provide adequate National Security."

In the halls of Congress, the Pentagon and other Executive Agencies of Government, the ROA has been a strong supporter of efforts to raise the status and standards of the military forces, to provide greater incentives for a military career, and to integrate Reservists more firmly into the total military structure. It has gone on record as advocating a relatively strong but highly trained Army, with a strong, well-trained Reserve.

Immediate ROA objectives include the provision of a greater degree of security for Reserve officers on active duty, establishment of stable rules for the historically-changeable Reserve program, and the development of a better-trained, better-equipped, self-sufficient and ready Reserve.

Special objects of the Association's wrath have been the recent Armed Forces RIF program and actions by the Bureau of the Budget.

Unalterably opposed to the recent Service reductions which saw thousands of Reservists involuntarily separated from the Service for economy reasons after as many as 17 years' active service, the Association has now put its full support behind Congressional attempts to provide contracts or other assurances on the status of active-duty Reservists.

If the ROA had its way, the Budget Bureau, accused of arbitrarily withholding money from National Defense, would be tucked away in a niche of the Treasury Department, without any active control over the handling of military funds. The Association's view is reflected in its backing of Representative Edward Hebert's (D-La) bill prohibiting the withholding or impounding of appropriations voted by Congress.

Frankenstein Is Seen

Speaking for the Association, Executive Director Col. John T. Carlton, USAR, told Congress that when they created the Bureau, they created a "governmental Frankenstein." He pointed out what the Association considers "excessive exercise of authority time after time when the Budget Bureau made military decisions."

With Colonel Carlton, the Association's 24-man staff located at 2517 Connecticut Ave. N. W., Washington, D. C., keeps in daily contact with all branches of Government and with ROA members throughout the world. A bi-weekly newsletter and monthly magazine "The Officer," edited by Maj. M. H. Manchester, USAR, links the headquarters with its members throughout the world.

Organized in 1921 and 1922, the Reserve Officers Association was formally chartered by Congress in 1948. It now has 1,200 chapters in 52 area departments throughout the world. The Associations 63,000 members, 20 percent on extended active duty, are divided by Services as follows: Army, 45,000; Air Force, 11,231; Navy, Marine and Coast Guard, 6,100. In addition, the Association has almost 12,000 junior and ROTC members.

Secretary Brucker Keynotes

About 1,500 of these members meet each year at the ROA's national convention to hear top authorities from all Services reveal the latest development on the American military scene. This year's convention, keynoted by Army Secretary Wilbur Brucker, will take place at Atlantic City, N. J., 25-28 June.

Besides General Morrison, officers of the Association include:

Power For Peace

From first page—

The Aviation Writers learned details of a new Navy helicopter built by Sikorsky (Page 6), and watched a dramatic demonstration of the Martin Bullpup missile in action (Page 26). AWA members received an up-to-the-minute report on the Lockheed Polaris project (Page 27).

Another JOURNAL representative attended commissioning ceremonies at Philadelphia Naval Shipyard 27 May of the guided missile cruiser Galveston which will be equipped with the Bullpup missile (Page 25).

Adding to the strength of the Air Force was the first delivery of the Republic F-105 Thunderchief, headed for duty with the TAC, described in a story on Page 28. To man and maintain these formidable new weapons with maximum effectiveness, the Services were counting on a powerful lift from the new pay law, which goes into effect 1 June.

House Committee Tells Who Is The Boss, Answers President's Objections

from first page—

...1 man in the Department of Defense, second only to the President. The Secretary of Defense runs the Department of Defense. That is his statutory responsibility, and that is the intent of the Committee on Armed Services."

The Committee noted that President Eisenhower has raised objections to two provisions of the re-drafted reorganization plan (THE JOURNAL, 24 May).

THE FIRST OBJECTION centers around Committee language which states that "Each military department shall be separately organized under its own Secretary and shall function under the direction, authority and control of the Secretary of Defense exercised through the respective Secretaries of such departments."

The President believes the words "exercised through the respective Secretaries of such departments" should be eliminated.

The Committee says it cannot understand this objection, "either there will be three military Secretaries operating under the direction, authority and control of the Secretary of Defense and responsible for their military departments, or there should no longer be three military Secretaries responsible for these military departments."

On the other hand, the Committee made it clear, the language of this section will not permit any one of the Services to operate as a "separately administered reserve."

If the line of command and responsibility from the Secretary of Defense to the Secretaries of the military departments should be terminated, the Committee says the result would be a "commingling of the operations of all departments and services within the Office of the Secretary of Defense which would become a huge overcentralized and unmanageable administrative conglomeration."

THE PRESIDENT'S SECOND OBJECTION deals with the manner in which major combatant functions can be transferred, reassigned, abolished or consolidated. He had asked that the Secretary of Defense be given broad powers to shift or eliminate such functions by the simple expedient of notifying Congress and waiting 30 days.

The Committee refused to grant such broad powers. Instead, the new reorganization bill gives the Secretary authority to take such action provided the Congress does not adopt a disapproving resolution to prevent it.

To erase any doubts about the definition of a major combatant function, the Committee said any combatant function becomes a "major" function if its transfer, reassignment, abolition or consolidation is opposed by any member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

In another important area, the Committee had this to say about the unified commands:

Statutory provisions to prevent the chief of a military service from withdrawing assigned forces or portions thereof from a unified command without the knowledge of the unified commanders or the approval of the JCS and the Secretary of Defense "should be enacted, and are contained in the proposed legislation."

IN THE NEW CONCEPT of the "truly unified" command, "direction must come from the Commander in Chief to the Secretary of Defense and from the Secretary directly to the commanders of the unified and specified commands. The forces in each such command must be assigned to the command by the Secretary of Defense and withdrawn from the command only by the authority of the Secretary of Defense. There must be a complete and undisputed understanding of the command authority of the commander of the unified command and his component commanders."

"In the 'truly unified' concept, the commander of the unified or specified command will have full operational command of all his assigned forces at all times and will communicate directly with the Joint Chiefs of Staff in matters pertaining to the preparation of strategic plans, strategic direction of his assigned forces, and the conduct of combat operations."

"The 'full operational command' vested in the commanders of the unified or specified commands is the full operational control required for the prompt and effective use of their assigned forces. So that there will be no question as to the command authority of the unified or specified commander, the following definition of his control over his component forces clearly establishes the broad scope of the authority he possesses in the exercise of this operational control (full operational command):

"This operational control is defined as those functions of command involving the composition of subordinate forces, the assignment of tasks, the designation of objectives and the authoritative direction necessary to accomplish the mission. Operational control should be exercised by the use of the assigned normal organizational units through their responsible commanders or through the commanders of subordinate forces established by the commander exercising operational control. It does not include such matters as administration, discipline, internal organization and unit training, except when a subordinate commander requests assistance."

"COMPONENT COMMANDERS must understand the broad command authority of the commander of the unified command to which they are assigned. They may, however, communicate directly with their chiefs of service in matters relating to administration, personnel, training, doctrine and combat development, logistics and other matters of single service interest."

The Committee said this definition "precludes any possible interpretation that the unified commands are to be developed into completely independent and wholly self-sufficient entities to assume the functions of and absorb the present Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps—a trend which would result not in greater unity but in divisive proliferation."

President Names USNA Graduating Class

The President has sent to the Senate the nominations of the following members of the U. S. Naval Academy class for appointment as Ensigns in the Line, Supply Corps and Civil Engineer Corps. Names of USNA '58 graduates being commissioned in the Air Force were published in the 10 May issue of THE JOURNAL.

Service Secretaries "Not Subservient," House Armed Services Group Declares

THE power and authority of the Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force as they relate to the Assistant Secretaries of Defense has been clarified by the House Armed Services Committee.

The Committee, in its report on the Pentagon Reorganization Plan, said:

Each of the military Secretaries "is responsible for his department; he is responsible to the Secretary of Defense. In order of precedence, the military Secretaries rank immediately after the Secretary of Defense and the Deputy Secretary of Defense."

"They do not rank after the Assistant Secretaries of Defense. They are senior to the Assistant Secretaries of Defense. They are not subservient to the Assistant Secretaries of Defense. They are not expected to take orders unilaterally given, from the Assistant Secretaries of Defense.

"The Assistant Secretaries of Defense are staff advisers to the Secretary of Defense. They are not individual bosses of the military departments."

Although approving the President's proposal to eliminate one Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health and Medical), the Committee indicated that it has not entirely abandoned proposals put forward by the Chairman and two senior members of the Committee to reduce further the number of Assistant Secretaries and to cut down on the number of personnel assigned to the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

The Committee said it "will continue to make inquiry" into these areas.

STRAC Chiefs Back Joint Command

From first page—

for limited wars, STRAC's first line units are entirely dependent on immediately available airlift to speed them to their destinations.

Questioned by THE JOURNAL, the Corps' major commanders expressed the opinion that it would be desirable to have both STRAC and its airlift under one operational command.

At present, air and sea transportation for STRAC units are provided by the Air Force and Navy, respectively.

The STRAC generals noted that airlift is the key to effectiveness of the "fire brigade." Their opinions varied from the approval of a joint command operation to the much more emphatic assertion by a general officer that "I don't see how you could work it any other way."

During the briefing sessions, attended by more than a dozen general officers, General Sink noted that STRAC's 50,000 men are now ready for immediate deployment. First units could be in the air, if the planes are available, within 2½ hours after being alerted.

All STRAC units could be moved out within a week. This would include two airborne and two infantry divisions.

Of special interest to the visiting generals and newsmen alike was the new Army Operations Center, which will house STRAC's field headquarters.

Directly connected by telephone and telegraph to all Corps units, the transportable command post is composed of a number of vans whose operations are coordinated through an intricate electronic communications network.

STRAC is also equipped with a unique set of slogans. Simplest of these is "Have Corps, Will Travel!"

On a more serious vein, General Sink noted that "STRAC is necessary just like SAC. It is the land force to wage limited war."

Component elements of STRAC are: 82d Airborne Division, Ft. Bragg, N. C.; 101st Airborne Division, Ft. Campbell, Ky.; 1st Infantry Division, Ft. Riley; and 4th Infantry Division, Ft. Lewis, Wash., as well as the XVIII Airborne Corps at Bragg.

Another $5.8 million is being asked for Cadet barracks and other facilities at the U. S. Military Academy.

New Dress Uniform For Army Women

The Army has approved a new white dress uniform for wear by members of the WAC, Nurse Corps and Medical Specialist Corps.

The uniform is optional and may be worn at appropriate occasions throughout the year.

The design of the uniform is similar to that of the Army Blue uniform worn by women, except that there is no gold ornamentation on the uniform or the hat. Authorized accessories are white shirtwaist, handbag, and gloves; black neck tab; and summer shade stockings.

White uniforms now owned by Army women and fabricated of other than the prescribed material, which is a 6.2 ounce dacron-rayon gabardine, may continue to be worn pending their need to be replaced, the Army said.

Next summer, a new summer service uniform will be integrated into the uniform system for Army women, and a new Army Green uniform in the fall of 1959.

Detailed instructions for tailoring of the new white dress uniform may be obtained from the Chief, U. S. Army Uniform Quality Control Office, Kansas Street, Natick, Mass.

The Army said that uniforms purchased by individuals must contain Quality Control Certificate as prescribed in AR 70-8400-3.

Aviation Writers See New Helicopter; Sikorsky HSS-1N A "Major Breakthrough"

NAS, CORPUS CHRISTI, TEX.

A new helicopter—the culmination of seven years of research and development by Sikorsky engineers and the U. S. Navy—the HSS-1N, made its first public flight here 26 May at a meeting of the Aviation Writers Association.

The HSS-1N—described as a major break-through in rotary wing flight, demonstrated its capability of instrument flight under day or night all-weather conditions.

Jack Stultz, Sikorsky engineer and pilot, put the helicopter through straight flight and hovering operations under complete instrument conditions. The helicopter made a hovering flight under predetermined height conditions with hands-off control.

The new helicopter control devices, similar to the automatic pilot for conventional aircraft, was described by RADM. R. E. Dixon, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, as a "milestone on the road to all-weather capability."

The new system embodies changes which incorporate new radars to measure ground speed and altitude accurately. They also improve flight instrument and cockpit arrangements, and provide the addition of automatic engine rpm controls, and the introduction of an automatic "hover coupler."

The HSS-1N represents the combined efforts of many instrumentation subcontractors. Major contributors were Hamilton Standard of Windsor Locks, Conn. on the engine governor; Lear, Inc., Grand Rapids, Mich. and Donner Scientific, Concord, Calif., on the automatic control components; Ryan Aeronautical, San Diego, Calif. and Sanders Associates, Nashua, N. H., on doppler radar; Raytheon of Waltham, Mass., and Sylvania, Buffalo, N. Y., on radio altimetry, and Sperry Gyroscope, Great Neck, L. I., on navigation components.

The HSS-1N is in production at Sikorsky's Bridgeport, Conn., plant.

WAGES FIGHT FOR MORE MARINES

Representative Herbert Zelenko (D-NY) has promised a fight in Congress to assure the Marine Corps a force of 215,000 men during the coming fiscal year.

The Marines are due to be cut back to 175,000 under fiscal '59 appropriations.

Congressman Zelenko says the reduction could "bring the Corps to the point where its readiness to accomplish its mission is destroyed."

He has advised the House that, if necessary, he will offer a floor amendment to the Pentagon Reorganization Plan to restore the Corps to 215,000 men and "to provide the appropriate funds therefor."

Marine Corps leaders, led by General Randolph McC. Pate, Commandant, have told Congress during hearings on the fiscal '59 budget that the slash in strength will adversely affect combat effectiveness. The Marine Corps has made known that it sought a strength above the 175,000 level in order to maintain the basic three divisions and three wings at top fighting trim.

Navy-Marine Corps Family Housing Moves Forward Under Capehart Program

A Capehart family housing project of 500 units is planned at the New London, Conn., Submarine Base, in fiscal year 1959.

In addition, about 500 new family housing units will be constructed at overseas locations under the Surplus Commodity program.

The New London construction will bring the Navy and Marine Corps total Capehart program to 13,560 units under construction or in process of development at a cost of more than $37 million.

The Navy also is asking Congress for $37.8 million for troop housing in the continental U. S., including $17.4 million for barracks and messhalls for 6,671 enlisted men at six installations, $14.2 million for dormitory, classroom and administrative facilities for 1,100 midshipmen at the U. S. Naval Academy and $6.2 million for quarters for 779 officers and 150 aviation cadets at five Naval air facilities.

More than 7,000 Capehart family housing units are now in the contracting process. They are:

THE USAF PREVENTIVE MAINTENANCE PROGRAM AWARD for the best preventive maintenance program among all small commands of the Air Force is presented to Lt. Gen. Dean C. Strother, Commander Air University, Maxwell AFB, Ala., by Brig. Gen. Joseph E. Gill, Deputy Director of Installations for Facilities Support, Headquarters USAF. Posing with the award following the presentation are (l to r) General Strother; Mr. B. Arthur Grobmeier, Chief, Installations Division; Mr. Cecil E. Vickers, Structural Engineer, Installations Division and Project Engineer for the Preventive Maintenance Program; Mr. James O. Williams, Chief, Design and Construction Branch, Installations Division; and General Gill. Mr. Grobmeier, Mr. Vickers, and Mr. Williams are members of the office of the Deputy Chief of Staff, Materiel, Headquarters Air University, and were given much credit for implementation of the winning program.

Republic Delivers First Thunderchief

The Air Force on 27 May took delivery of the first Republic F-105 Thunderchief, described as "a new generation of supersonic jet combat planes that can deliver an atomic weapon at speeds nearly twice that of sound."

Six years in development, the Thunderchief fighter-bomber being built for TAC brings "firepower, versatility and global mobility surpassing any aircraft now flying," according to General O. P. Weyland, Commander of TAC.

In formal ceremonies at Republic Aviation's Farmingdale, L. I., N. Y. plant, General Weyland accepted the first production model of the fighter-bomber from President Mundy Peale.

General Weyland said that sometime in 1959 TAC will put into service its first wing of the F-105's.

To speed transition of the new jet from test to squadron use, General Weyland said the Air Force will introduce a new procedure. This calls for operational testing by TAC and ARDC at Elgin AFB, Fla., by the men who themselves will form the first tactical squadron. Previously, such tests were conducted at the Air Proving Ground Center and other Air Force agencies and the results turned over to TAC.

General Weyland said he expected the new system to reduce the time from acceptance to squadron use by one to two years.

Describing the new jet, which can perform either as a fighter or as a bomber, as the "most powerful one-man airplane in the world," General Weyland disclosed that the ultrasonic Thunderchief can deliver in one strike several times more firepower than was expended by the Air Force during the entire Korean War.

"These new fighter-bombers with their combat potential will, when phased into TAC squadrons of supersonic aircraft dispersed at bases around the world, give further visible proof that this nation is taking an active part in the defense of the free world," General Weyland declared. The F-105's strike range can be extended by in-flight refueling from TAC KB-50 jet-augmented tankers to attack a target of any size, anywhere in the world in a matter of hours. This marks a major step forward in tactical airpower, he said.

Mr. Peale explained that the large size of the F-105 (63 feet long; a 34 foot wingspan) permits it to carry 8 tons of fuel internally and in five external full tanks, in addition to a nuclear weapon in the bomb bay, to extend its range. Its Pratt & Whitney J-75 power plant, with 15,000 pounds of thrust without afterburner, pushes its top speed well above any fighter-bomber now operational, he said. As an example of the energy generated, Peale said that in one hour the energy discharged from the after-burner is sufficient to furnish the electrical needs of the average home for 15 years.

Mr. Peale said the Republic would go into volume production of the supersonic aircraft this fall and has production scheduled running through 1960, with extensions pending for 1961. He did not indicate how many F-105's were called for in Air Force contracts which have a dollar total of some $347 million.

General Weyland pointed out that in addition to the nuclear weapons, the F-105 is equipped to carry clusters of rockets, some 4,000 pounds of conventional bombs, napalm bombs, guided and unguided missiles.

It is armed with the 20 mm Vulcan automatic cannon developed by General Electric. Believed to be the world's fastest, most potent machine gun, it can fire 6,000 rounds a minute.

The bombs can be delivered at altitudes of 50,000 feet and up or at tree-top level with equal pin-point accuracy, General Weyland said.

Officer, Cadet Training Merged

Consolidation of officer and aviation cadet training under one organization, Pre-Flight School, USAF, at Lackland AFB, Tex., will be effected 1 June, it is announced by Maj. Gen. H. L. Grills, Base Commander.

The move places both officer pre-flight training, previously in a separate training group, and cadet training under the command of the single unit.

Col. August F. Taute, who heads the cadet program, will command the pre-flight school.

Lt. Col. William B. White, Commander of the 3700th Pre-Flight Training Group (Officer), will assume command of the USAF Language School at Lackland.

There will be no change in the four pre-flight courses, including cadet navigator and pilot training, officer navigator and pilot courses.

7,528 New Capeharts Slated For Air Force Families; 5,977 Other Units Planned

The Air Force plans to build 7,528 new Capehart family housing units during next fiscal.

The total number of Capeharts under construction or in the process of development for Air Force families is 53,460, costing almost $348 million.

The fiscal '59 military construction program also includes funds for 777 family housing units to be constructed with Appropriated funds and 5,200 to be constructed at overseas locations with Surplus Commodity funds.

The new Air Force Capehart units planned for the 12-month period beginning 1 July are:

Number of Units	Location
220	Ellsworth AFB, S. D.
414	Forbes AFB, Kans.
460	Glasgow AFB, Mont.
504	Grand Forks AFB, N. D.
270	Griffiss AFB, N. Y.
290	Keesler AFB, Miss.

475	Kinross AFB, Mich.
380	KI Sawyer Airport, Mich.
490	Kirtland AFB, N. M.
500	Langley AFB, Va.
540	McClellan AFB, Calif.
932	Minot AFB, N. D.
900	Richard Bong AFB, Wis.
150	Robins AFB, Ga.
580	Selfridge AFB, Mich.
500	Sheppard AFB, Tex.
300	USAF, Colorado
154	Whiteman AFB, Mo.
618	Wurtsmith AFB, Mich.

The Air Force also is asking Congress for $42.8 million for troop housing and dining facilities in the continental U. S. and overseas. This includes $27.3 million for 13,205 airmen dormitory spaces, $163,000 for rehabilitation of 847 existing dormitory spaces, $7.1 million for 80 BOQ spaces and $7.2 million for dining halls.

Additionally, the Air Force will acquire about 9,374 additional Wherry family housing units to be converted to public quarters.

GENERAL MADDUX—"MR. PAY"—CHANGES DUTY

Maj. Gen. Harold R. Maddux, USAF, who played the top military role in the months of action which preceded approval of the Military Pay Act of 1958, is headed for a new assignment.

General Maddux, whose brilliant work as Director of the Office of Manpower Requirements, Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower, Personnel and Reserve, has been widely acclaimed at the Pentagon and on Capitol Hill, will switch assignments with Maj. Gen. Thomas C. Musgraves, jr., USAF.

General Musgrave is Director of Manpower and Organization in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations at USAF Headquarters.

General Maddux is a 1933 USMA graduate; General Musgrave was graduated from West Point in the class of '35. Both were commissioned in the Infantry, but immediately entered flying training.

General Maddux, who was Staff Director for the Cordiner Committee and head of the special manpower task force subsequently appointed by then Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, has been on duty with the Department of Defense since 31 July 1955. After service as Deputy U. S. Representative to the Standing Group of NATO, General Musgrave became Deputy Director of Air Force Manpower and Organization 9 January 1956 and Director on 14 June 1956.

TROPHIES FOR CASH

A special SAC committee study of non-appropriated fund spending has resulted in a cutback of commitments for cash prizes, awards, and trophies which formerly amounted to about $240,000 yearly.

After 30 June there will be no more $1,000 cash awards given in the retention, ground safety, and OJT programs.

This cut alone will result in an $18,000 yearly savings, according to Maj. Gen. Edwin B. Broadhurst, SAC CofS, who, with the deputy commanders of the three numbered air forces, comprised the special committee.

Trophies or plaques will be substituted for the cash awards in the ground safety and OJT programs.

The committee also cut down on all organizational cash awards and all individual cash awards, except for specific programs where Air Force or SAC directive cash awards and limitations are recommended, i.e., art contest, short story contest, and military incentive awards.

Colonels In Moves

COL. NEIL A. NEWMAN, Director of Operations and Training for the Central Air Defense Force, Richards-Gebaur AFB, Mo., has been named Commanding Officer of the Grand Forks, N. D., Air Defense Sector (SAGE), 15 July.

COL. JAMES D. MAYDEN becomes Director of Operations for CADF at Richards-Gebaur. He comes from Hamilton AFB, Calif., where he served as Vice Commander of the 28th Air Division. He will be responsible to Maj. Gen. Jarred V. Crabb, Commander CADF, for the operational control of the entire 19-state CADF defense network.

The Team behind Tall Tom

The Hoffman TEAM approach (Total Engineering and Administrative Management) is a new concept in electronic systems management. Under the leadership of Hoffman as prime contractor, the TEAM is concentrating the maximum engineering capabilities of eight selected firms on development of the Air Force's highly sophisticated TALL TOM (AN/ALD-3) Electronic Reconnaissance System. The TALL TOM TEAM gives promise that the complete system will be delivered at a substantial saving in time and money.

By utilizing with optimum efficiency and economy the specialized talents of any number of large and small organizations, the Hoffman TEAM concept is directly applicable to research, development and production of other complex electronic systems. Inquiries are invited regarding the application of this unique Hoffman TEAM approach to your systems problems.

Service Sons Carry On Tradition

More than 200 young men whose fathers made careers in the Armed Forces are among the graduating members of the U. S. Military and Naval and Coast Guard Academy classes of 1958. In some instances they represent the third or more generation of their families to bear arms for the United States. Not all are sons of commissioned officers; many are sons of non-commissioned and petty officers. But all have the distinct advantage of being fully aware of both the shortcomings and the honor of serving their Nation in both war and peace.

These Sons of the Service hold no advantage over their brothers from the civilian families on farms and from business and industry. Each made his way through the Academy and will continue through Service life on his own merits and according to his own accomplishments. The advantage the Service son has is his awareness of what he and his family face in a military career. He is therefore more likely to remain for a full career.

At present the number of appointments to the Service Academies that the President may make from some of the Services is restricted by law. President Eisenhower has asked that these limits be expanded so that more Service sons may be appointed. This is necessary because many Service families have no firm local connections by which they can secure Congressional appointments. We hope that Congress will soon act on this request.

An Assistant Secretary's Great Legacy

On Saturday 24 May, while playing tennis in Washington, D. C., Assistant Secretary of Defense William H. Francis, jr., suddenly collapsed and died. A WWII Army captain of intelligence on General of the Army Eisenhower's staff, he was 43 years of age.

Born in Ft. Worth, Tex., and educated at Rice Institute and the University of Texas, where he was an honor law student, Mr. Francis gained national prominence during recent months for his tireless and dedicated devotion to the cause of increased career attractiveness for men and women in the Armed Forces.

His death takes from the Pentagon an official who did not hesitate to speak his piece, whether in the top echelon councils of the Defense Department and the Administration or on Capitol Hill. His courage and refusal to sugar-coat problems played a major role in the passage of the Military Pay Act of 1958.

Assistant Secretary Francis studied exhaustively the intricate manpower problems and their impact on combat effectiveness and defense spending. Frequently, he worked at the Pentagon until late hours of the night preparing himself for important briefings to be presented to his superiors or for his days of appearance in demanding and exacting testimony before Congressional Committees.

Secretary of Defense McElroy spoke for the Services when he said that Mr. Francis' death "is a severe loss to the Nation . . . His contribution toward making military careers more attractive and rewarding is one of many for which he will be remembered with gratitude."

The heartening lack of political partisanship that marked the Congressional action on the pay legislation was pointed up in the eulogy paid to Assistant Secretary Francis, a member of a Republican Administration, by Representative Albert Thomas (D-Ark.), who told the House: "During his service as Assistant Secretary of Defense, he brought great credit and distinction to his party, to himself, and to his family. The Republicans and Democrats alike, in the Executive branch and in the Congress, had the greatest respect and admiration for him."

At this Memorial Day, as the Nation pays its boundless gratitude to the Fighting Forces in the silently eloquent ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery honoring the Unknown of WWII and Korea, it is appropriate that honor also be accorded such a person as William H. Francis, jr.

Like the Unknown heroes of the battlefield, he leaves a legacy of complete dedication to the cause of Freedom and the strengthening of the United States. In our Government, the hands of the military and civilian are joined for eternity as one in the Service of the Nation.

Crediting Academy Service In Computing Pay

Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (R-Mass) called the attention of the House of Representatives on 21 May to the "most interesting and enlightening article" in THE JOURNAL of 17 May on the discrimination against Service Academy graduates in the matter of credit for pay purposes.

After inserting the entire JOURNAL article in the Record, Mrs. Rogers recalled that when the recent pay bill was in the Senate Committee she appealed to Chairman Richard B. Russell to amend it so as to give all Academy graduates on the retired list credit for their Academy Service. Under present conditions, she pointed out, only those who were graduated up to 1916 get such credit; those who graduated subsequently are denied credit. This came about, she recalled, because of a "misguided economy drive over 45 years ago."

Mrs. Rogers expressed the hope that the Congress and the Department of Defense will act to remove the areas of discrimination which THE JOURNAL article and her own letter to Senator Russell "seek to illuminate and eliminate."

Perhaps with the active support of the distinguished Representative from Massachusetts action on this important project may be initiated.

READERS' VIEWS

■ Now that the Congress has broken faith with the retired members of the armed services by enactment of pay legislation which repudiates the nation's contractual obligation to them, it might be well for persons contemplating a service career to reevaluate their long range prospects. Passage of the Cordiner Act in its present form does not merely discriminate against retired people but sets the terrible precedent under which retired personnel may at any time be deprived of any or all of the benefits which have been promised them through their lifetime as inducements to take up professional military careers. Now that they have faithfully fulfilled their part of bargain, it is broken by the government.

The least that should have been done, if it is the intent of Congress to relegate retired service personnel to the status of pensioners, would have been to grant the benefits accorded pensioners: that is, income tax exemption, etc. However, it appears that Congress still intends to squeeze the maximum out of retired personnel by providing for their recall to active duty but without benefit of the new active duty pay scales until they have served specified periods of time subsequent to recall.

It is to be noted that survivor benefits have been made applicable to the new pay scales, and justly so. Why then, should not the pay of the person to be survived receive the same consideration? Is it to be assumed that the service man is of less importance than his widow?

CAPT. USMC-RET.

■ Let us consider a four-year college education as par for the course. Not all officers have it, but with the opportunities for night school now available for American military personnel throughout the world, there are very few who could not obtain a college degree with the proper amount of effort.

Then for each year of graduate college work for which a person receives a degree from an accredited institution of learning, give him $25 per month extra pay. Upon this basis, most lawyers (but not all of them) would receive $80 per month extra. Medics generally would receive $100 per month extra. Engineers and scientists would receive extra pay if sufficiently educated to qualify for it.

Should one be deprived of the extra pay because the military service sent him to law or medical school? No, it took a lot of personal effort for him to obtain his education, even though Uncle Sam helped. And many, many officers received their education at the expense of the Veterans Administration.

Should attendance at an advanced service school qualify for the extra pay? No, again. Every officer who has the qualifications (with few exceptions) is in the running for the highly selective process of choosing students for the advanced service schools.

Perhaps the foregoing plan could be refined in many ways, but I believe it is worth study and consideration.

COLLEGIATE COLONEL

■ It is significant to note that of all the proposals or suggestions in the May issue of THE JOURNAL relative to possible uses for the "Extra" pay increases for field grade officers who are successfully filling positions of "extraordinary responsibility and critical necessity," not one considered positions of Command.

This is a true indication of the trend of the times. Too much emphasis has been placed and is being placed on technical skills and knowledge, speed, writing and staffing ability, fair-haired close-to-the-throne coordinating personalities (aide-de-camp, security, general staff, etc.) and too little on Command capabilities. Consequently the subjectively inclined officer avoids the round-out assignments planned by the career management division and carefully arranges for himself to be selected for the high strategic positions, entailing little responsibility. He may run down and get the "smell of troops" a few months, perhaps once in his career between lieutenant and colonel, general; but he seldom makes that take again. It might lower his O.E.I.

This isn't sour grapes. Let anyone examine carefully the records of col-

50 Years Ago—The Signal Corps has out bids for a canvas aerodrome house in which to house the machines that are under construction to be delivered at Ft. Myer this Summer.

SUBMARINE MARKS REVEALED AT LAUNCHING; SKIPJACK WILL "FLY," NOT CRUISE

During the Skipjack ceremonies at Groton, Conn., Admiral Burke revealed epic voyages of the nuclear submarines Skate, under Cdr. James F. Calvert, and SeaWolf, under Cdr. Richard B. Lanning.

The Skate surfaced 23 May off Long Island Sound after being submerged on a cruise of more than 8000 miles for 31 days and 5½ hours. The SeaWolf also surfaced there after 30 days under seas.

The SeaWolf previously held the record—16 days.

Admiral Burke termed the achievements "a major breakthrough of the first magnitude with implications extending far beyond the realm of under-sea warfare."

The Skipjack was launched 26 May by Mrs. George D. Mahon, wife of the Texas Congressman who heads the House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee.

The revolutionary vessel's speed is listed officially at 20 knots, but is believed by experts to be considerably greater. The Skipjack, bearing hull number SS(N)-585, is the first atomic-powered submarine to be designed with a shark-shaped hull similar to the experimental diesel-propelled submarine Albacore.

Her design also includes diving planes which serve as "underwater wings." The 252-foot sub, displacing 2850 tons (light), is driven by a single 15-ton, 15-foot propeller instead of the conventional two.

Her commanding officer, Cdr. William W. Behren, Jr., is referred to by submariners as a "pilot." Cruises of the Skipjack will be logged as "flights."

Skipjack's streamlined hull configuration will permit her skipper to put her through a series of "hydrobatics," including twists and turns, rolls and pitches, climbs and dives, and peels.

The "pilot" and "co-pilot," along with other operators, will be strapped into their seats when the highly maneuverable sub is put through her paces.

She is equipped with an automatic pilot which can be set for course, speed and depth. Ballast tanks can be filled or emptied by pushing a button. Electronic and hydraulic gear will keep a check on motors, air conditioning, refrigeration and gas systems. She has a self-contained atmosphere which is continuously purified and recirculated.

Next Week—

THE MEMORIAL DAY HOLIDAY has required that this issue of THE JOURNAL go to press earlier than usual. In order to publish a complete report on the ceremonies honoring the Unknown of WWII and Korea, this story has been scheduled for next week's issue.

ADDITIONAL ARTICLES from the Aviation Writers Association annual convention in Houston, Tex., will be another feature of the 7 June issue.

...els who have made general since the Korean war broke. Yes—a few commanded regiments (their first command since pre-world-war days) but for how long? And under what conditions! When platoon size patrols were going out occasionally to see if they could do so without being captured. And incidentally, how many of these shining lights had civilian components duty (A Secretary of Defense requirement)? If the money is to be put to good use, let's place it where it can do the most good—for assignments with command responsibility.

Cdr. Cauble Tosses Bomb; Is "Tossed" Himself

NAS CORPUS CHRISTI, TEX.

LCdr. Lawrence M. Cauble, USN, one of a group of naval pilots demonstrating the Navy's version of toss bombing, let go with a bomb in a demonstration for the Aviation Writers' Association here 26 May, made the closest hit to the target, had a flame-out in his engine, bailed out, was picked up by a helicopter and brought back before his audience, and described his experience, all within a few moments.

Commander Cauble, flying an A4D-2 attack plane, demonstrated the "over the shoulder" bombing technique in which he came in low, flew over the target, climbed to altitude and let his bomb go to fly higher and eventually drop on its target while he was far away from the drop.

During Commander Cauble's demonstration, his engine flamed-out just at the time he was at the top of his inverted flight. He was forced to make a quick turnover and eject. His parachute opened promptly in full view of the audience, the helicopter picked him up as promptly as he landed, and brought him back to the grandstand.

received, I would have done better to burn it than to return it. From now on, moral scruples with respect to library books are out. All prospective, honest unfortunates are hereby warned: Burn that library book even though it may be the Gutenberg Bible. If it's long overdue, and you return it, it may ruin your reputation.

No such story is complete without an epilogue. I am happy to say that my friend, who left The Book in my quarters, is still one of my most valued friends. More important: He is a retired major general whose character and abilities would have raised him higher in the stars than any Sputnik, had his age been right. I hope he didn't have to pay for The Book!

As for me: The volume of my fan mail has been due to the fact that I ended my career as Librarian, U.S.M.A., West Point, New York. For that privilege, I would accept even Hell as a bargain.

CNO Burke Hails The Skipjack At Electric Boat Launch Ceremonies

(The following is the text of remarks made by Admiral Arleigh Burke, Chief of Naval Operations, during the launching 26 May of the world's fastest submarine, USS Skipjack, at the General Dynamic Corporation's Electric Boat Division, Groton, Conn.)

SOME of the most revolutionary developments of Naval science have come from these building ways of the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corporation at Groton, Connecticut. These products of the brains and the sweat, the imagination and the toil of this company and the skillful shipbuilders of Groton have served the Nation and the Navy well.

These same submarine building slips constructed and launched the world's first nuclear ship, the Nautilus. On the building slip directly to my left workmen are constructing the first Fleet Ballistic Missile submarine, which will mount the Polaris ballistic missile. Further to my left, Triton, the world's largest submarine and the most advanced picket submarine for early warning and defense against enemy aircraft, is under construction. And elsewhere in this yard the keel is being laid for the Tullibee, a smaller high performance nuclear submarine, specially designed for combat against enemy submarines.

Truly, this building yard has made great contributions to the revolutionary progress of Naval weapons all the way back to the Navy's first submarine, the Holland, built here in 1900.

Today we will witness the launching of another advanced naval weapon, the Skipjack. This will be a significant milestone in the history of submarine development, for Skipjack brings together two prime advantages for the first time, Nautilus power plus the Albacore hull.

SHE IS THE FORE-RUNNER of a new generation of submarines. The combination of nuclear propulsion and a streamlined hull of new design will give her the greatest submarine performance of any ship presently in the Fleet. She will have unmatched speed, endurance and underwater maneuverability. She will be a strong addition to the fighting power of the Fleet and to the defense of the United States.

It is particularly appropriate that this ship should be called Skipjack. United States submarines are traditionally and appropriately named after fish. The namesake of this fine ship is a fierce steel-blue game fish inhabiting large areas of the seas. It is a deep water fish known for its speed, aggressiveness and skill as a swimmer, even as this ship shall become known. It is a ferocious, bellicose fighting fish with a tenacious spirit, most fitting for an American submarine.

THE NAME SKIPJACK has become famous for other reasons. In 1911 Lt. Chester W. Nimitz, an officer who was to become Fleet Admiral Nimitz, one of the greatest sailors of the United States Navy, fitted out the first Skipjack, later named the E-1, and assumed command in 1912. Another Skipjack, commissioned in 1936, performed proud and valiant service throughout World War II. Some of the greatest war exploits of that Skipjack were performed under the leadership of Commander James W. Coe, a naval hero who was awarded the Navy Cross for his exploits with Skipjack and who later gave his life commanding Cisco.

This fine ship and the men who serve her will have a proud tradition and a precept of valor to guide them.

THE MISSION OF THIS SHIP will be to defend the United States by attacking hostile ships, particularly enemy submarines. The Soviet submarine menace today is one of the greatest military threats facing this country. The Soviet Union has nearly ten times as many submarines as Hitler had at the start of World War II. Soon Russian submarines will have the capability to attack our homeland with guided missiles launched from the waters off our shores. Skipjack will be part of the team of destroyers, aircraft carriers and submarines whose mission will be to hunt down and kill enemy submarines.

To protect our country and our vital ocean shipping, Skipjack will be armed with the latest and most powerful anti-submarine weapons and detection equipment. Her greatest material assets will be the sustained power of her nuclear propulsion, her streamlined hull and her hydrodynamic controls, which will combine to give her the speed and aquatic skill of her namesake. But it is the sailormen aboard her who will give her strength, character, courage and purpose.

In a few moments this powerful new submarine will enter her natural element, the sea. During her life in the service of our country she will be called upon for many dangerous missions. Her strength, her stamina and her spirit will be tested in the depths of the ocean. She may be called upon to fight in defense of the nation. She must always be ready, she must always be courageous, for she is responsible for an important part of the security of our wonderful country.

The nucleus of Skipjack's crew is already here. Men and ships are getting acquainted with each other. They have already started the task of molding themselves into a unit, a team, a single entity.

THOSE WHO SERVE in Skipjack will use her skillfully and well. Her deeds will honor the proud name of Skipjack and perpetuate the gallantry of her predecessors. The traditions of the Navy and the valor of the submarine service will support her.

In peace and in battle, may she ever perform her duty proudly and in accordance with the highest traditions of the United States Navy and the submarine service.

About That 31-Year Overdue Book—

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

In your issue of 5 April 1958 you published a squib to the effect that I had returned a book to the Signal School Library at Fort Monmouth after having had it out for thirty-one years. Although at least a partial explanation appears to have been available to you, you did not see fit to include it. As I am still receiving "fan mail" and snide allusions to this episode, I request that in fairness, you publish my explanation.

I never drew the book from the Signal School Library, and it was never charged to me. I never read it either. It was inadvertently left in my room in the Bachelor Building by another officer who had read it with enthusiasm and came around to discuss it with me. Within the next day or two, my belongings were hastily packed for an unexpected change of station; and the book was put in a box which I did not examine until recently. Having re-retired, I was clearing out my attic and came across a box of old Signal Corps manuals, etc.: and there was The Book!

In the light of the ragging I have

ALL THE SERVICES are scrutinizing their officer rosters, particularly in the colonel (Navy captain) ranks to select top notch men who will be assigned to the enlarged Joint Staff of the JCS. There's no question that in the past some of the Services at times have detailed less than their best to some Defense Department activities. This won't be the case with the Joint Staff, where crucial studies will be made.

PENTAGON OFFICIALS WILL KNOW that a basic change in attitude has taken place in the Joint Staff when officers assigned there no longer refer to it as "The Arena." Lt. Gen. Oliver S. Picker, USAF, the new Joint Staff Director, can be counted on to knock that approach into oblivion. His aim is to make the Joint Staff a smooth clipping operation—no less than any of the individual Service staffs.

ONE PROBLEM that will require constant attention is that officers assigned to the Joint Staff do not suffer future advancement handicaps upon completion of the JCS tour because of possible decisions and actions in which they participated which were not favored by their Service. It's not likely to happen, but it is an understandable matter of concern.

DON'T LOOK FOR MUCH MORE personnel legislation on Capitol Hill this session. First of all, the Budget Bureau is not enthusiastic about any measure that will cost money, such as the Reserve Term Retention proposal. Secondly, with the Pay Legislation completed and Defense Reorganization on its way, Congress will feel it's done a big job for the Armed Forces this session—which it has. Not to be forgotten also is the fact that many legislators soon must begin worrying in earnest about elections in November.

A WAR IS WAGING in the Nation's magazines about the future of military aviation. Some recent articles have sounded the alarm that Armed Forces flying faces its death. Not so, says Clay Blair, Jr., a WWII Naval submariner, in an article titled "Who Says Pilots are Obsolete?" in the 31 May issue of "The Saturday Evening Post." Mr. Blair was the first reporter to fly a mission in a B-52.

ARMY MEN WILL FIND NOTHING STRANGE in the quotation by General Thomas Power, SAC CinC, with which skilled reporter Blair ends his authoritative article. "We think of missiles here at SAC as comparable to heavy artillery," says General Power. "Fire them first, if you will. But a man must come in behind to do the real fighting." As far as Army leaders are concerned, that goes for manned aircraft, as well as missiles; it's the man on the ground, they say, who must come in for the finish.

CRACKER CRUMBLING isn't the biggest problem confronting the Armed Forces today. Nonetheless, an Industry Advisory Committee has been asked by the Quartermaster Corps to give advice on "causes and prevention of breakage in crackers." Another problem: "methods for improving formulation and bulk density of cookies."

FREE UNIFORMS for living Medal of Honor recipients—there are about 340—are proposed in legislation sponsored by Representative Elizabeth Kee (D-WVa.) She points out that they frequently are asked to participate in civic and patriotic functions, and most of those in civilian life lack suitable uniforms. One problem is that the Army Medal of Honor recipients' lack the new green uniform.

THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION will carry its fight to the Senate to retain the position of Assistant Secretary of Defense for Health and Medical Affairs. The Association contends on the basis that the prestige of the military medical services has greatly increased both at home and abroad since this position was first created. Under the Pentagon Reorganization Act, the Assistant Secretary (Health and Medical) would be relegated to a new position as "Special Assistant" to the Secretary of Defense.

SERVICE JUDGE ADVOCATES GENERAL continue to urge that the Uniform Code of Military Justice be amended, but chances are slim that Congress will take action this year. Annual reports of the JAG's, released this week, refer to the fact that amendments to the UCMJ have been under discussion for a number of years.

ONE REASON THE JAG'S want changes in present law is the length of time it takes from trial by court-martial to completion of the review by the Court of Military Appeals. At present, this is 407 days. As a result, many prisoners complete their sentence before their cases are fully reviewed.

THE ANNUAL REPORTS disclose that the Army JAG wants electrocution to supplant hanging as the means of executing the death penalty imposed by courts-martial in time of peace in the United States. "In lieu of approval of the recommendation," the Army JAG states, "the Secretary of the Army expressed the desire that the means of execution of the death penalty be discretionary with proper authority so that electrocution may be selected as an additional alternative to those means now prescribed."

DRAFT DIRECTOR Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey is expected to deliver a strongly worded address when he speaks at the annual banquet of the Armed Forces Communications and Electronics Association 5 June in Washington, D. C. The blunt-talking general, who needs to clear his remarks with no one, is concerned over a recent outbreak of articles which suggest that the draft should be abolished. In the past, the General has taken the position that more men—not less—should be inducted into the Service. He contends this should be done as a matter of equality of obligation and also to strengthen the Reserve Forces.

PENTAGON OFFICIALS WERE CHAGRINED with the release of Congressional testimony in which details are told by Dr. Herbert York, Chief Scientist of the Advanced Research Projects Agency, concerning the military reconnaissance satellite, the Pied Piper. The Air Force has been trying for months to put out a release on this project, but DoD has said no. For the same reason, the Air Force has not been able to answer newsmen's inquiries. At last word, the Air Force still was under wraps, notwithstanding Dr. York's responsive comments including the fact that the satellites will be designed for altitudes of 200 or 300 miles, will have a gross weight of about 1-1½ tons and will be launched by an Atlas ICBM booster.

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS who volunteer for military medical research projects in the Army will not be given routine immunization shots during the period 1 June 1958-1 June 1959. The Army is conducting research studies which require data on recruits prior to their receiving routine immunizations.

War College Commandant Tells Plans For Top Echelon Sessions

THE NATIONAL STRATEGY SEMINAR

by

Maj. Gen. Max S. Johnson, Commandant
Army War College, Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania

ON 10 June many distinguished military and civilian personages will arrive at 201-year-old Carlisle Barracks, Pa., where for four days they will join students of the U. S. Army War College in examining and refining student developed national strategy and a supporting military program.

The program of the 1958 National Strategy Seminar will consist of lectures by distinguished individuals on political, economic, and military topics; joint guest-student participation in committee discussions; and a plenary session at which the conclusions of one or more selected committees will be presented and examined.

The seminar is conducted in much the same manner as the regular course of study at the Army's senior educational institution. Lectures by recognized authorities in various fields extend committee research by providing comprehensive orientation as well as an important backdrop for the committee discussion periods. With each committee consisting of from 12 to 15 members, the emphasis is placed on problem solving in the committee sessions.

A faculty adviser works with each of the committees to assist with general guidance, but the adviser neither formulates nor suggests categorical solutions.

Ten Year Plan

Early in the academic year each of the student committees evolves a proposed national strategy (to include political, economic and psychological policies essential to its implementation) and its supporting military program for approximately the next 10 years. Just prior to the seminar, these same committees reconvene to refine and amplify the substance of the proposed national strategy and its derivative national military program in light of the knowledge gained in the interim. The seminar, then, serves as the culmination of the 10-month course of study at the top post-graduate level.

Upon arrival, each guest will be assigned as a member of one of the committees. On the first day, the guests will be welcomed by their respective committees, oriented with respect to the problem, and briefed on the student-developed strategies and military programs.

Following lectures by such personages as Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker; General Nathan M. Twining, Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff; General Maxwell D. Taylor, the Army's Chief of Staff and Dr. Elliott V. Bell, "Business Week" magazine, the combined student-guest committees will discuss and examine the proposed strategies, and evaluate the effectiveness of these strategies for the next decade. The guest are encouraged to participate fully in committee deliberations, for their contributions are particularly valuable in analyzing the adequacy of proposed strategies from the viewpoint of their respective fields of specialized experience and professional knowledge.

In the plenary session, one or more strategies, together with significant variants as developed within committees, will be examined and discussed.

Fourth Annual Seminar

This 1958 seminar will be the fourth annual event of its type which has been conducted by the College. Here on the tree shaded "campus" of one of the nation's oldest active military installations, present day studies for the future are developed against the historic heritage of the national service rendered by the thousands of our nation's officers and soldiers who have received schooling and training at this central Pennsylvania post since its establishment in 1757.

Although it is impossible to foretell the exact composition of the guest list, it is known that a cross section of the nation's business, labor, industrial, civic, trade, religious, educational and communications leadership will be present for the four-day seminar. In previous years, guests have included such prominent individuals as high officials of the Department of Defense, the presidents of large industrial corporations, bank presidents, nationally-known educators, government officials from the nation's capital, and key executives of various research concerns.

The College feels that while the principal value of these seminars is the broadening of views and sharpening the perception of the students, they also serve to create a greater understanding and closer cooperation between the Armed Services and the civilian populace of the nation. As one former seminar guest stated, "... I came away with a deep understanding of the problems of today's Army and, indeed, with a healthy regard for the really modern thinking in the top echelon of command..."

GEN. COLLINS HEADS $500,000 CHAPEL DRIVE

Under the chairmanship of General J. Lawton Collins, USA-Ret., a drive is underway to raise funds for expansion of Holy Trinity Catholic Chapel at West Point, which began last fall. The seating capacity of the Chapel, originally constructed in 1899, will be more than doubled from its present 272 seats to 551. This will more adequately accommodate the Cadet Catholic Chapel squad, today numbering some 750 Cadets.

Brochures have been mailed to graduates and friends of Holy Trinity Chapel to solicit their help in raising necessary funds to pay for the $500,000 construction. Those who have not received a brochure and others who wish to help this worthy cause in any way are asked to write to Rt. Rev. Monsignor Joseph P. Moore, Rector, Holy Trinity Chapel, West Point, N. Missile Cruiser Galveston Commissioned; Bendix Talos Will Be Main Armament

PHILADELPHIA NAVAL SHIPYARD

THE first of a new fleet of missile-age cruisers, the USS Galveston, capable of destroying aircraft and surface targets at ranges beyond 65 miles, was commissioned here 28 May.

Principal armament of the Galveston will be the Talos missile, made for the Navy by the missile section of the Bendix Aviation Corporation.

Effective against both air and surface targets, the Talos has been hailed by Admiral Arleigh Burke, Chief of Naval Operations, as the "best (anti-aircraft) missile in any arsenal in the world."

The Galveston will be the first of several cruisers to use the Talos with its nuclear capability—including the first nuclear-powered cruiser, the Long Beach, now under construction.

The Galveston will join the fleet this summer, commanded by Capt. John Barr Colwell, USN.

The Talos, named after the Greek Demigod who guarded Crete, is powered by a ramjet engine of 40,000 horsepower, giving it supersonic speed faster than that of a bullet, a range far in excess of conventional Navy "big guns," and a ceiling higher than that reached by any bomber.

It is being produced by Bendix at its missile plant in Mishawaka, Ind., under a $27,000,000 contract from the Navy.

THE TALOS MISSILE weighs 3,000 pounds and is approximately 20 feet long and 30 inches in diameter. It is accelerated to supersonic speed by a solid-fuel rocket booster about 10 feet long. When it reaches cruising speed the booster is jettisoned and the missile's ramjet engine takes over.

The missile is directed to the target area by a beam type of guidance received directly from the launching point. When it approaches the target, a second or "homing brain" takes over. A proximity fuse detonates the warhead when the Talos is within the "kill" range of the target.

A "traffic light" test system at the launching point automatically determines when each component in the Talos is ready for firing. This electronic system, called Talos Tactical Test Equipment (TATTE), gives a green-light "go-ahead" signal when all components have passed inspection. Bendix engineers say that TATTE greatly simplifies the task of preparing the missile for firing.

The Galveston is the second to be named for the Texas city. The first Galveston was commissioned in 1905 and served through WWI; it was scrapped in 1933.

The present Galveston was launched in 1945, but was placed in Reserve Fleet status in 1947, when nearly ready for commissioning. Her conversion to a guided missile cruiser was begun at the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard in 1956.

The Galveston is 610 feet long, has a design displacement of 14,600 tons and a design speed of more than 30 knots. She will carry a crew of 89 officers and 1,187 enlisted men.

KEY OFFICERS assigned to the Galveston are: Cdr. R. Joslin, Executive Officer; Cdr. M. J. Ostrander, Operation Officer; Cdr. William R. Underwood, Gunnery Officer; LCDR. D. D. Grantham, Missile Officer; and LCDR. J. H. Harrier, Fire-control Officer.

In addition to the stern-mounted Talos battery, The Galveston carries conventional 5" and 6" guns.

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

Congress Studies $1.6 Billion Bill

The House and Senate Armed Services Committee's have opened hearings on the $1.6 billion military construction authorization bill.

The measure includes $545 million for Armed Forces missile programs, $230 million for expanded radar defense systems, $208 million to improve the capabilities of SAC and $178 million for research and development, anti-missile missiles and outer-space project facilities.

Also included in the program are substantial amounts to support submarine and anti-submarine activities, fighter aircraft programs, combat training, family and troop housing.

Of the total funds requested, the Army will receive $347 million, Navy and Marine Corps $301 million, Air Force $986 million and Department of Defense $50 million.

BULLPUP BULLSEYE

NAS CORPUS CHRISTI, TEX.

The first public firing of the Martin Bullpup missile here 26 May, before an audience of the Aviation Writers Association, resulted in a direct hit on the wing of its target—a worn-out FBM-5 flying boat built by Martin for WWII service.

The radio-directed Bullpup was fired from a North American FJ-4 from a distance of about 15,000 feet. The war-weary FBM was hit in its left wing and sank shortly after.

The Bullpup was clearly seen by the viewers as it left the aircraft and started towards its target. It is about 11 feet long, a foot in diameter, and weighs about 600 pounds. The official Navy announcement said it is capable of speeds of Mach 1.8 and of carrying warheads of various dimensions and potential.

The Journal has reported previously that the Air Force, as well as the Navy and Marine Corps will use the Bullpup and that it will be capable of firing an atomic warhead.

Logistic Shifts

MAJ. GEN. HENRY R. MCKENZIE, USA, Executive Director of the Military Subsistence Supply Agency, Chicago, will retire this summer at the Presidio of San Francisco. He plans to join the faculty of San Francisco State College, 1600 Holloway Ave., San Francisco, in September. General McKenzie will be succeeded by Maj. Gen. Hugh MacKintosh, reporting on 1 August from duty in Washington.

COL. JAMES D. SAMS, USA, Fourth Army Ordnance Office, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., leaves 5 June to become Project Officer with the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, Patrick AFB, Fla.

LT. COL. SAMUEL D. WILLIAMSON, USA, formerly with the Transportation Corps Supply and Maintenance Command, St. Louis, has been named Transportation Officer of Ft. Carson, Colo. He succeeds, Lt. Col. Byron E. Cowart, re-assigned to the Far East.

New Recorder Monitors

28 Frequencies At Once

A 28-track magnetic tape recording system for monitoring radio conversations between pilots and ground controllers is now in operation at Edwards AFB, Calif.

Built by the Davies Laboratory Division of Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co., Beltsville, Md., it can simultaneously monitor around-the-clock voice communications on 28 radio frequencies. The voice monitor has two recorders which use one-and-three-quarter-inch wide tape on reels 19 inches in diameter.

Army Transport Unit Tells New Contracts

The Army Transportation Supply and Maintenance Command at St. Louis has announced award of contracts totaling $745,099.20 for railroad cars and aircraft tires.

Largest contract—$673,536—went to the Ortner Company, Cincinnati, for 96 40-ton capacity hopper cars at $7,016 each.

The Frank G. Schenutt Rubber Company, Baltimore, received a $28,608.96 contract for 1,753 aircraft tires.

A contract for $42,954.24 for 2,632 aircraft tires went to the U. S. Rubber Company, Detroit, under a Defense Department policy of awarding contracts, where possible, in labor surplus areas.

$100 MILLION G-E J93 AWARD

Air Force contracts leading to a development program of more than $100 million have been announced by the General Electric Company for its J93 jet engine, an advanced powerplant for future supersonic aircraft.

Preliminary development work has been underway for several months at the Company's Aircraft Gas Turbine Division, Cincinnati, following an initial USAF fund allocation.

In announcing the J93 contract signing, Gerhard Neumann, manager of the Company's Jet Engine Department, said details of the contract and design applications of the future engine are "highly classified."

He described the contract as being a "major contractual step" in the development of the supersonic powerplant, although engineering work has progressed rapidly for some time.

Under Mr. Neumann's direction, General Electric engineers at the company's nearby Evendale, Ohio, plant developed the J79 jet engine, the nation's first production engine capable of powering aircraft at twice the speed of sound. The J79 currently powers the Convair B-58 Hustler and the Lockheed F-104 Starfighter, the world's fastest bomber and fighter; the Grumman Navy F11F-1F Tiger fighter; the North American A3J Attack Weapons System, the largest carrier based aircraft; and the Chance Vought Regulus II surface-to-surface missile.

Maj. LeFavre Sets Five Climb-Speed Records In Douglas F4D-1 Skyray At Point Mugu

CORPUS CHRISTI, TEX.

Five official world aircraft climbing speed records, including four formerly held by France, have been broken with the Navy's supersonic Douglas F4D-1 Skyray, it was revealed here today in connection with the Aviation Writers Association annual meeting.

In spectacular near-perpendicular climbs from a standing start, the delta winged, all-weather, jet fighter-interceptor set its marks 22-23 May at the Naval Air Missile Test Center at Point Mugu, Calif.

Its highest goal of 15,000 meters (49,212.5 feet) was reached in 2 min., 36.05 sec.

Piloting for the record flights was Maj. Edward N. LeFavre, USMC.

Capt. Turner F. Caldwell, USN, Special Assistant to the Deputy CNO for Air, told the Aviation Writers here that the standard production model F4D-1 Skyray also set the following marks, which are better than existing international records:

To 3,000 meters (9,842.5 feet), 44.39 sec.;
6,000 meters (19,685 feet), 1 min., 6.13 sec.;
9,000 meters (29,527.5 feet), 1 min., 29.81 sec.;
and 12,000 meters (39,370 feet), 1 min., 51.23 sec.

The new times erased four records set 16 February 1957 at Istre, France, by Pilot Michel Chahard in a French jet, the Nord 1405 Gerfaut 88. The same flights also established National U. S. records for all altitudes up to and including 15,000 meters.

Bettered were the 3,000 meters time of 51.15 sec.; 6,000 meters, 1 min., 17.05 sec.; 9,000 meters, 1 min., 33.75 sec.; and 12,000 meters, 2 min., 17.70 sec. There was no official existing record for the 15,000 meters climb.

Captain Caldwell described the Skyray's performances as "all-out drag races to specified altitudes in which the pilot's only competitor was the clock."

The F4D-1 was powered on its rocket-like ascents by a single Pratt & Whitney J-57-P8 turbojet engine which normally develops 10,200 pounds of static thrust or 16,000 pounds with afterburner ignited.

Major LeFavre, Navy Bureau of Aeronautics project officer on the Skyray in Washington, D. C., said each flight was a realistic demonstration of the plane's primary mission—to climb from carrier decks to high altitudes to intercept and shoot down enemy aircraft with guns or missiles on a moment's notice.

On each take-off from the Point Mugu airstrip, Major LeFavre "revved" the craft's engine to maximum power, released its brakes, fired off the afterburner which burns raw fuel and once sufficient forward speed had been gained, pulled the Skyray's needle nose skyward into a steep 70-degree climb.

The Marine pilot reached climb speeds of nearly 650 miles per hour and experienced G-loads (force of gravity) up to 2½ times his own weight.

Special instrumentation, including radar tracking devices, were used to clock each flight under the jurisdiction of Mr.

Bert Rhine, official representative for the National Aeronautic Association of Washington, D. C. The results of the flights have been submitted to the Federation Aeronautique Internationale in Paris by the NAA for "official" acceptance and publication as world records.

Captain Caldwell pointed out that the F4D-1 has been operated by Navy and Marine Corps squadrons off carriers and land bases in all major world theaters for more than two years. It also is employed by the North American Air Defense Command at a strategic point on the perimeter of the U. S. as an all-weather interceptor.

The Skyray still holds official world speed records set in 1953 of 752.9 miles per hour over the classic three-kilometer, low level, straightaway course, and 728.11 miles per hour around the 100-kilometer (62.14 miles) circular course.

The single place jet which has a normal gross weight of 20,000 pounds was designed and is still in quantity production at the El Segundo, Calif., Division of Douglas Aircraft Company.

New In Service

A QUICK-HEATING CHEMICAL BATTERY the size of a brick has been developed by the American Machine & Foundry Corp., New York to solve the problem of providing instant electrical power for missiles which must be stored and fired quickly at sub-zero temperatures.

A GUNNERY COMPUTER to figure and record complicated gunnery problems in a matter of minutes has been rented by the Ft. Sill, Okla., gunnery department. The $50,000 machine was produced by the Bendix Aviation Corporation.

TELEvised WEATHER briefings over a closed-circuit system are in operation with the 343d Fighter Group, Duluth, Minn. The system, built by RCA Electronic Products, permits a weather officer to conduct briefings near his instruments in the base weather station while the pilots receive the latest data close to their waiting planes.

AF MISSILE GROUND TEST FACILITY of Thompson Products, Inc., Inglewood, Calif., will be on display for the first time to delegates to the Western Electronics Show and Convention 19-22 August. The facility deals with fuels, missile materials and re-entry problems.

VULCAN, the world's fastest-firing aerial machine-gun will arm the Republic F-105 Thunderchief fighter-bomber. The 20-mm gun can fire 6,000 rounds per minute.

AN ELECTRONIC REGULATOR to maintain helicopter engines at constant speeds in flight has been produced by the Hamilton Standard division of United Aircraft Corp., Broad Brook, Conn. It will be first installed on the Navy HSS-1N version of the Sikorsky S-58 helicopter.

New Facility Set

For Polaris Project

Speeding the Polaris missile project, the Navy has authorized the construction of an addition to its support facility at the Lockheed plant, Sunnyvale, Calif.

Originally scheduled for construction next year, the building is designed to furnish the closest integration of the Polaris weapon system management, technical skill, testing, and manufacture.

It will provide the needed manufacturing capability when the Polaris research and development phase is completed.

Until the first segment of the new building is completed, Lockheed's Polaris missile system management, engineering and research personnel, and the Naval Inspector of Ordnance will remain in the company's present buildings.

"ADEQUATE BET"

Secretary of Defense McElroy has told the House Appropriations Committee that the fiscal '58 and '59 budgets, including the supplementals for each year, include more than $1.25 billion for the Polaris program.

"In our judgment," he said, "that was an adequate bet to put down at this stage even for this very promising system."

The Secretary was responding to questions in which legislators pointed out that the Polaris submarine construction program had been reduced from the nine asked by the Navy to five.

Gen. Wood Credits USMA For Success

HONORED by top military and civilian leaders in Chicago, Brig. Gen. Robert E. Wood, USA-Ret., has credited the U. S. Military Academy with the training and education which made possible his subsequent accomplishments in military and business careers.

General Wood, who retired from the Army in 1919 and is now Chairman of the Board of Sears, Roebuck and Company, told the leaders assembled 14 May at the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry:

"I owe a great deal to the Military Academy."

During the ceremonies he received from Lt. Gen. William H. Arnold, Fifth Army Commander, a Certificate of Appreciation for his "sincere and continuing interest in the United States Army in innumerable ways" since his retirement. General Wood was graduated from West Point with the class of 1900.

Those assembled to pay tribute to the general included: Assistant Army Secretary Frank H. Higgins; Brig. Gen. Lawrence H. Whiting, USA-Ret., Vice-President of the Chicago Area Chapter of the Association of the U. S. Army and President of the American Furniture Mart; Lt. Gen. Walter L. Weible, USA-Ret., National Executive Director of the AUSA and former Army Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel; and Lt. Col. William E. Campbell, Jr., who accompanied Secretary Higgins from the Pentagon. In his keynote address, Secretary Higgins described the "big business" aspects of Army purchasing and logistics.

At the dinner, sponsored by the Chicago AUSA Chapter, congratulatory messages were read from the White House, General Maxwell D. Taylor, Governor William G. Stratton of Illinois, Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker, and General Alfred M. Gruenther, USA-Ret., President of the American Red Cross.

Academy Insurance

Issues First Policy

Academy Life Insurance Company of Colorado Springs, Colo., has received its Certificate of Authority and has started issuing insurance, it is announced by Col. Henry I. Szymanski, USA-Ret., President. The first policy was purchased by Capt. Franz O. Willenbacher, USN-Ret., for his son, Midshipman Marshall R. Willenbacher.

Colonel Szymanski said Academy's low premium rates and high cash values are attributable to Academy Life's method of direct selling without agents.

Academy Life carries its reinsurance contracts with some of the nation's largest reinsurance organizations.

The Advisory Board of Academy Life Insurance Company includes many military and naval leaders: Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, USN-Ret.; General A. C. Wedemeyer, USA-Ret.; Lt. Gen. S. R. Mickelsen, USA-Ret.; and RAdm Douglas Jardine, USN-Ret.

They Keep Busy

MAJ. GEN. HOLMES E. DAGER, USA-Ret., former Director of the Federal Civil Defense Natural Disaster Office, has been reassigned as the Agency's Military Liaison Officer. He is succeeded by Mr. William E. Crockett, former Chief of the Operations and Plans Branch, Fourth Army Headquarters, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., a Reserve major.

CAPTAINS THOMAS H. URDAHL and PAUL S. BAUER, USNR-Ret., have joined forces to establish the Urdahl Associates engineering firm at 1300 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington, D. C. Also associated with the firm are: Lawrence N. Gonzalez, who served during WWII as a Lieutenant Colonel in the Army Corps of Engineers in the European and Caribbean Theaters; and Robert B. Keating, USNA '46, who served from 1953 to 1956 as Head of Intelligence, Allied Naval Forces, Central Europe, Fontainebleau, France.

Polaris-Submarine Program Fulfills Need For Deterrent, Adm. Hayward Tells AWA

NAVAL AIR STATION
CORPUS CHRISTI, TEX.

THE Polaris-submarine program answers the requirements most necessary in a deterrent force, RAdm. John T. Hayward, Assistant Chief of Naval Operations for Research and Development, told members of the Aviation Writers Association here 26 May.

"The greatest threat to the free alliance today," Admiral Hayward said, "is the submarine and missile combination. Our success with the Polaris program shows us clearly that this weapon system answers the requirements most necessary in a deterrent force."

"It has flexibility. It is a source system and it is not dependent on foreign bases."

Admiral Hayward also came to the defense of what he called "the much maligned and little understood aircraft carrier."

"This weapon system," he declared, "is one of our optimum systems for projecting our power across the sea in situations not only where we might be required to fight, but in the cold war. It is always hard for me to understand why people get so upset about the size of our aircraft carriers. The laws of physics are no respecters of the sea or the land. In order to operate modern aircraft aboard our ships it is necessary to have 750 feet of landing space. This is the governing dimensions for this on our ship."

"As long as the manned airplane is with us, the aircraft carrier will be here."

Admiral Hayward spoke at a luncheon sponsored by Lockheed Aircraft. During the morning the AWA members witnessed a demonstration of naval aircraft here and also the first showing of a new RCAF hunter-killer patrol plane. In the afternoon naval aircraft gave a demonstration of the effect of sonic booms on a temporary village set up on the King Ranch near here.

JOURNAL IMPACT!

Four consecutive pages of The Congressional Record of 21 May are devoted to publication of articles which first appeared in The Journal.

These stories concerned the Pentagon confusion over "conflict of interest" policies and The Journal's discussion of longevity pay discrimination against Academy and ROTC graduates.

The Journal is quoted more often on Capitol Hill than any other military publication.

Pay Is Raised; Some Delays Told

From first page—

vocated by the Cordiner Committee. It was opposed by the Department of Defense and the Services, which contended that it would be extremely difficult to administer.

The House did not propose responsibility pay for officers, but the Senate did, notably at the urging of Senator John Stennis (D-Miss), who headed the Armed Services Subcommittee which conducted the pay hearings.

At one time during the Senate Subcommittee hearings, the proposal was made that extra pay for officers should be based on skill qualifications. Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, head of the Army Missile Command, and Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, head of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division, were mentioned by name as likely prospects for such extra pay.

Mention also was made of certain non-rated scientific officers assigned to the Air Research and Development Command, among others.

Later, the emphasis on "skill qualifications" shifted to talk about extra pay for officers who demonstrate "outstanding effectiveness."

As finally voted by Congress, however, the eligibility depends upon the filling of positions of "extraordinary responsibility and critical necessity."

Pentagon officials concede freely that it will take long weeks of study to determine the specific criteria for awarding responsibility pay.

Some suggestions are being made that responsibility pay be used to compensate officers in remote areas—for example Antarctica or Korea—but there's no problem here in that it would have to apply equally to enlisted personnel as well.

Personnel experts explain that enlisted proficiency pay was designed and supported because it would encourage military men to seek and remain in billets where they are critically needed.

This type of incentive, it is stated, is not needed in officer ranks. The top caliber officers the Services want are persons who strive for the most challenging type of assignments, such as command of Army and Marine Corps regiments, B-52 wings, and Navy ships.

On top of the complexities involved in officer responsibility pay, there is the powerful influence of the Budget Bureau which wants to hold military pay costs at minimum levels.

If fully implemented, proficiency pay could cost $37.5 million in the next fiscal year. The estimated cost of officer responsibility pay goes as high as $12 million.

Another pay problem confronts the Coast Guard exclusively. As first revealed in THE JOURNAL, that Service has sufficient funds in its budget to pay the costs of the increase for June of this year, but not enough in the personnel category. Congressional action is needed to authorize the Coast Guard to shift funds within its budget.

All of the Services have dispatched detailed instructions to the field on implementation of the Military Pay Act of 1958 and finance officers are reported ready to go. Personnel who are paid twice monthly will receive the increased pay during June; others at the end of the month.

How to choose your policy...

TWENTY-PAY LIFE

If you want to buy Life Insurance and get it paid for in a short period of time, this Twenty-Pay Life Plan is for you.

You pay a little more each year than for Ordinary Life, but your cash values develop faster—and you don't pay premiums for the rest of your life.

SPECIAL ORDINARY LIFE PLAN

The principal purpose of Special Ordinary Life Insurance is to provide the greatest amount of permanent protection at the lowest cost. This is the most popular form of life insurance. When you seek the best way to meet your own protection needs, consider this type policy first. It provides lifetime protection. The cost, spread over your lifetime, is less than any other permanent insurance.

5 YEAR TERM PLAN

Five Year Term Insurance meets the need of one who wants the greatest amount of protection for a limited time at the lowest possible cost. It's an ideal plan while your income is relatively low but your insurance needs are great. Nearly everyone had this plan during World War II but many converted it to Ordinary Life, explained above.

Once your original application is approved, your policy may be renewed for additional five year periods, or converted to another type of insurance, regardless of your health at that time. (Physical examination not even required.) Both term and ordinary life insurance are issued in minimum amounts of $5,000. You may apply for as much as you want but for amounts over $15,000, a copy of your current physical is required. If you enter or leave service, there is NO CHANGE in cost.
